Unmanned Cargo Aircraft Conference

May 26, 2016

Twente Safety Campus, Enschede, The Netherlands

Enschede - On May 26, 2016, the Unmanned Cargo Aircraft Conference will take place at Twente Safety Campus in Enschede, The Netherlands.

Nowadays, thousands of Unmanned aerial vehicles are in use worldwide. One fast growing application is in transportation / logistics: Unmanned Cargo Aircraft (UCA).

It is clear that UCA can be cheaper and more productive than other means of transport, and are suitable for low-volume cargo streams for which the use of manned aircraft is uneconomical. But which developments can we expect in the near future? Which markets could benefit from UCA? What should a UCA look like? And will aircraft manufacturers invest in UCA technology?

The third international edition of the Unmanned Cargo Aircraft Conference will bring specialists from all over the world together to assess the potential of UCA and discuss these questions. Professionals in logistics, aircraft manufacturers, regulators, system developers and airlines will be present at the conference.

International speakers from German Aerospace Center (DLR), Platform Unmanned Cargo Aircraft, Rotterdam School of Management, Bird & Bird, Twente Safety & Security, Neva Aerospace, Avio Aeroa, LOR'AERO Consulting, WFS Pro and Eindhoven University of Technology Innovation Lab will present their views around all aspects of UCA.
